Introduction

Welcome to City Skills' April Newsletter, just in time for the start of spring! It has indeed been a bustling period for us, filled with exciting developments and new beginnings. Over the past few months, we've formed some exciting new partnerships and launched several cohorts. Our business skills masterclass sessions have been brimming with eager participants, reflecting the enthusiasm of our apprentices and partners in embracing continuous professional development (CPD). We're delighted to see such strong engagement and commitment within our community.

Sam Doo

Head of Business Development & Partnerships

Over the past few months, we have worked diligently to offer more valuable content within the realm of apprenticeships. We have also collaborated closely with partners to provide them with a broader understanding of our programs and the flexibility they offer. Large organisations now have the opportunity to contribute up to 50% of their levy to support other businesses in need of apprenticeship funding. Additionally, organisations that are not subject to the apprenticeship levy no longer need to pay co-investment costs for individuals under the age of 22. For all organisations wishing to increase their apprenticeship participation but lacking the necessary funding, many entities are currently pledging funds.
